

Conference Guideline

Purpose

The global animal rights movement involves numerous groups with diverse strategies on how to get to a society free of animal exploitation: abolitionist, reformist, vegan outreach, direct action, institutional, grass roots, single issue, total liberation, and many more slogans are used to describe the different approaches. The International Animal Rights Conference (IARC) wants to be a platform, where representatives of all these different approaches can get together and exchange their ideas. It is the goal to get many different ideas represented, because only a critical discourse will allow the animal rights movement to move forward and develop strategies that will get us closer to the common goal of a world free of exploitation of humans and non-human animals. The IARC organization team will not exclude any approaches from the conference, as long as these do not involve unacceptable behavior. This guideline outlines the expected behavior for all participants on the IARC as well as unacceptable behavior and their consequences.

Expected Behavior

- All conference participants, including speakers, helpers and the IARC organization team, should be treated with respect and consideration, valuing a diversity of views and opinions. The IARC has the goal to create an environment to allow for the respectful exchange of ideas and information. All participants have to avoid unacceptable behavior.
- Be considerate, respectful and collaborative; communicate openly with each others, critiquing ideas rather than individuals.
- Be mindful of your surroundings and of your fellow participants.
- Speakers are responsible to respect usage rights, copyrights and citation rules if they use non-self-produced texts, figures, pictures, films or music.
- We are guests at the Kulturfabrik (KUFA) and have to respect their host rights.
- Alert the IARC organization team if you notice dangerous situation, someone in distress, or violation of this guideline.
- We invite all participants to help us to create the IARC a safe and positive experience for everyone.

Unacceptable Behavior

- Unaccepted behavior include: harassing, intimidation, abusive, discriminatory, derogatory or demeaning speech or actions by any participant.
- Harassment includes: harmful or prejudicial verbal or written discriminating comments related to gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, color, ethnicity, (dis-)ability, socio-economic status, appearance, body-size, religion (or lack of) or species.
- Harassment includes furthermore inappropriate use of nudity and/or sexual images in public spaces (including presentation slides); deliberate intimidation, stalking or following; sustained disruption of talks or other events; inappropriate physical contact, and unwelcome sexual attention.
- Recording or taking photography of another individual's presentation without the explicit permission of the speaker is not allowed.
- Avoid to equalize animal exploitation with the Holocaust (or aspects of the Holocaust), rape or child abuse.

Addressing Complaints

- If you are subject to unacceptable behavior or have witnessed such behavior that violates respectful participant conduct, please notify a member of IARC organization team. Notification can be done on-site or by email: info@ar-conference.org
- All reports will remain completely confidential, if this is requested.

Consequences of Unacceptable Behavior

- Unacceptable behavior will not be tolerated.
- The IARC organization team may take any action they deem appropriate, up to a permanent expulsion from the conference.
